Homeschool Programs

2010-2011

Bring your children to the beautiful Wilkerson Center for Colorado River Education at Redbud Center for one (or both) of our 2010-2011 Homeschool Day Programs! Located in central Austin, the Center's five-acre riverside grounds feature interactive exhibits that help youth learn about the history, importance and conservation of the Colorado River in Texas. Our homeschool days provide age specific, docent-led programs full of fun, hands-on activities all about our river.

Homeschool Days 2010-2011

H₂O DETECTIVES

Tuesday, October 19th

Students become water detectives! They learn what makes our river water clean or polluted and examine real life sources of pollution. Younger students study the water cycle and older students examine the chemistry of water. Plus a bonus tour of the interactive grounds at Redbud teaches the history of the river and central Texas.

RIVEROLOGY

Tuesday, March 1st

What's the recipe for a healthy river? Students explore attributes of a healthy aquatic ecosystem and learn about plants and animals native to the Colorado River. Focus shifts to water conservation practices and the water treatment process.

Program Details

- Homeschool programs run from 9:00 am – 1:30 pm.
- Programs are provided free of charge.
- All programs are held outdoors. Inclement weather requires us to cancel programming.
- We request that at least one adult per group stay for the entirety of the program.
- You must provide your own lunch. Plan to eat lunch on the grounds 'picnic style' during the allotted time (45 minutes).
- Please contact program coordinator Sarah Richards with questions at (512) 498-1587 or sarah@coloradoriver.org.
